Mutina for Art is pleased to present Ronan Bouroullec – The Sound of My Left Hand, the first solo exhibition in Italy of the French artist and designer. At Casa Mutina Milano Bouroullec makes his artistic practice coexist with the poetics of his objects without setting boundaries.

In the exhibition – curated by Sarah Cosulich – Ronan Bouroullec's drawings weave sinuous and obsessive lines while intertwining with the solidity of their ceramic frames. His ceramic bas reliefs, on the other hand, rub against metal or oil-stick backgrounds with their abstract shapes and strong colours becoming protagonists on spontaneous stages. Anthropomorphic or organic, Bouroullec's work suggests both an introspective practice as well as a constant observation of reality and its reduction into visceral form.

The elegant repetition of lines and circles infinitely appearing in the hard ceramic surfaces gives way to soft floating patterns. These surfaces clothe the rooms of the exhibition space and become the backdrop of a multi-layered theatre. Sometimes they materialize as unexpected fragments constantly awakening the sense of touch.

In Bouroullec's show everything comes together in an ideal and fluid collage where drawing and design, artwork and display, sign and material silently clang. Tridimensionality and bi-dimensionality fool the gaze in their overlapping of texture and form, in a way that overcomes the need for a definition of the gesture that produced it.

Ronan Bouroullec is an artist and a designer, meditative yet concrete, bold yet quiet as the lines and the circles that seem to chase after each other, everywhere, in his practice.

*Pico, Rombini, Punto, Pico Bois and Bloc – both medium and background of the exhibition – are the new ceramic collections designed by Ronan together with his brother Erwan Bouroullec for Mutina.
